

Since Mia was little, there is a special family member at her home, a little kitten named Whiskers. Along with Whiskers accompany, Mia was able to explore the world full of adventure.

Theme: The meaning of life

When little Mia lost her beloved kitten as she grew up, she felt heart broken and felt a void that seemed impossible to fill. One day, her parents surprised her with a virtual reality headset, allowing her to experience Whisker's life through a pair of curious kitten eyes.

As she navigated the vibrant world as a kitten that mirrors the image of Whiskers, exploring sunny gardens and playful adventures, Mia learned about the joys of living in the moment and the importance of cherishing every fleeting experience.

In that immersive journey, Mia found comfort in understanding that while Whiskers was gone, the love they shared would always remain in her heart. That's how she understood the meaning of life, and how she met with her new cat, Lora.

Would you approve this application or not?

Rebecca often feel being surrounded by sadness since her wife ,Eleanor, died a few years ago.

Theme: One more goodbye by her side

One day, Rebecca dreamed about the days they cheer each other's up and giving each other a warm hug for overcoming difficulties in their life.

"I want my beloved one back!", though by Rebecca. She started to look for ways that could possibly bring Eleanor back.

Rebecca found an virtual reality application that enabled her to upload Eleanor's video and audio for AI analysis. This allowed Rebecca to chat with her through a virtual form like she was still alive.

Would you approve this application or not?

Clara and Daniel were a loving couple who complemented each other, having their lovely son, they created a harmonious life filled with laughter and shared dreams.

Theme: A special family reunion

After losing her husband unexpectedly, Clara found herself navigating the world alone, her heart heavy with grief. Still, she poured her love into raising their son, Ethan.

Clara often shared stories of her late husband, keeping his spirit alive in their small house. However, she felt it was not enough.

Clara often wished for Daniel's presence, longing for his guidance as their son grew up. She imagined a virtual space where he could read a book to their son before a good dream.

Would you approve this application or not?

In a cozy palliative care center, a group of elderly residents was introduced a new kind of technology, virtual reality, which promised them a taste of adventure in their later years.

Theme: More than one last adventure

I want my life at the final stages be crazy!

Thought by many elderlies, they were granted this unique virtual experience with personalized choices.

Eager to break free from the confines of their rooms and escape a moment from treatments, they donned the headsets and found themselves soaring over mountain, dancing in vibrant festivals, and exploring distant lands.

With this immersive experience, they langued, shared stories, and embracing a sense of freedom and joy. In that virtual space, they not only found excitement but also a sense of connection, proving that life's adventures could be found at any age.

Would you approve this application or not?

Steve had a car accident on his way to work. He survived from it and was transported to the hospital.

Theme: Re-ignite the fire of life

Due to the severity of the injuries from the car crash, Steve underwent a surgery. He was told that he needs to do a whole year of physical therapy to recover the potential of stand on these feet again.

Recalling the days walking with his dog, Steve has the will to battle the pain and frustration along the one-year journey.

Suggested by the doctor, Steve adopted latest virtual technology for a better therapy experience and a faster recovery process.

Would you approve this application or not?

Feeling tiny amidst the vastness of the universe, Ava often wondered about her place in it and how to leave a mark that mattered.

Theme: The existence of a self

How can I build a space as a proof of my existence?

Ava started to think about building her self a memorial-like space to store her life journey for people after her.

Inspired by her dreams, Ava turned to virtual reality, envisioning a stunning memorial that would encapsulate her stories. As she crafted vibrant landscapes and heartfelt message, Ava gradually found her meaning.

Ava put her emotions into crafting a digital sanctuary that celebrated her existence. In that immersive space, she found solace, realizing that even the smallest voices could resonate deeply in the hearts of others.

Would you approve this application or not?